Man Convicted of Impersonating a Police Officer

Antonio Marcus Arbogast has been convicted of impersonating a police officer in connection with an incident last year in which he followed a female motorist in his vehicle in Aurora.

Arbogast (DOB 08/16/92) was convicted of impersonating a peace officer (F6) and harassment (M3) after a two-day trial this week in Adams County District Court. The jury took 40 minutes to return a guilty verdict late Tuesday afternoon.

Arbogast began following the woman in the early morning hours of May 18, 2015. She reported to police that she was being followed by a little car that had flashing lights and was trying to pull her over, and that she did not believe she was being followed by a police officer.

He is set for sentencing at 1:30 p.m. August 26 in Division L of Adams County District Court.
